Radius vs A

- Assuming the nucleus of mass number A to be a spherical object with a sharp surface and constant nucleonic density ρ_0 nucleons/fm^3, find the relation between nuclear radius and A. Test the performance of the resulting expression by comparing with experimental data for charge radii.

- Transform to rms radius.

- Compare with the experimental data (for different A) and discuss how good our approximation is.